FLORAL GREEN SOX WILL PLAY DEFUNIACK

Florida, April 26.—The Florida Green Sox left the city via auto for DeFuniack Springs, where they will play a series of ball games with the Palmer College boys.

Bud Anderson, the Oregon boy, who was captured into fame by a series of sensational battles on the coast, winding up with a trimmings of Kayo Brown, sees his way clear to the lightweight championship. He will merely wallop Joe Rivers and then clean up on champion Willie Ritchie. Bud apparently has the goods to go a long ways toward backing up his dreams, too.

TWO COUNTIES PRODUCE GOOD MANY OYSTER

IN LAST SIX MONTHS AND HALF 5,056 BARRELS AND 403 SACKS WERE CAUGHT IN ESCAMBIA AND SANTA ROSA AND SOLD IN PENSACOLA.

According to figures furnished by Gus A. Soderlund, fish and game warden of Escambia county, 5,056 is the number of barrels of oysters caught in Escambia and Santa Rosa counties and sold in Pensacola during the past six months, including fifteen days of the present month.

A total of 403 sacks of oysters were also brought here and disposed of, a small percentage of them coming from Apalachicola.

In addition to the oysters brought to Pensacola in barrels and sacks, Escambia county produces on an average of 100 gallons of shelled oysters, which do not have to be inspected by the game warden.

The following shows the quantity of oysters received at Pensacola by months:

	Barrels	Sacks
October, 1912	774	60
November, 1912	739	75
December, 1912	1067	62
January, 1913	1121	94
February, 1913	658	42
March, 1913	420	37
April, 1913 (15 days)	277	33
Totals	5056	403

Three boats which arrived here from Santa Rosa county within the past six months, were not allowed to land their catches of oysters on account of them being too small.

Game Warden Soderlund has caused the arrest of one oyster fisherman on the charge of tonging oysters which did not come up to the required size and also being an alien fishing without license. This case is now in the courts.

THE L. & N. MAY TEST THE WEBB LIQUOR LAWS

LATE STATUTE IS SAID TO HAVE PUT RAILROAD COMPANY IN AN EMBARRASSING POSITION IN ALABAMA.

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL. Anniston, Ala., April 25.—The people of Anniston are interested to ascertain the exact steps the Louisville and Nashville railroad will take against the city in the way of dealing with the raid of their warehouse last Friday, when large shipments of liquor and beer were confiscated by the city. It is probable the road will sue the city and thus make a test of the city to seize liquors held by railroads.

The railroads are said to be in sympathy with the city in its efforts to enforce the prohibition law, but they are said to be put in an embarrassing condition as a result of the raids last week. They cannot refuse to accept liquor for shipment, it is said, without being sued therefor, and once they have accepted it, they can be sued if they do not deliver it.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

By Mae Wilkerson.

As there is at present so much discussion on this great question of equal rights, I ask permission to express myself in a few brief lines.

In the beginning I contend that the sphere which the female is called upon to fill is a domestic one. "Home" is the foundation place of all government. A well regulated and well governed home is a model for any government. There the father is president and the mother vice-president, and there, in my opinion, is the sphere in which woman is called upon to do her suffrage work.

There the mother has charge of the voter from infancy to young manhood, and if she isn't successful during all those years of training in influencing him toward all that is good and noble, for what would her individual vote count at the polls on election day?

To rule and command is man's sphere. He is here to govern. This is why man is so much stronger than woman. We will all agree that the female of every kind of animal is

Can You Recommend the Feed You Are Now Using as Highly?

Gentlemen:

We have been using your Star Molasses Feed in our stables with such excellent results during the past two years that we feel called upon to write you an expression of our thorough satisfaction.

Star Molasses feed, we have found, is exceptionally nourishing, cooling and appetizing, and we find that horses will eat it when they will eat nothing else. The feed is much more nourishing in proportion to its weight than any other feed we have used, and it is, therefore, in the long run the cheapest feed.

Star Molasses Feed is a good "strong" feed and we take pleasure in recommending it to anybody.

Very truly yours,

Gentlemen:

Having used Star Molasses Feed extensively in our stables we are pleased to be able to recommend it most highly.

We have found Star Feed to be a fine nourishing feed and one that is very cooling.

Very truly yours, weaker. Now it is evident that it requires greater power to rule, and I think this superior power would not have been given to man had it not been for him to rule.

What would happen if women were endowed with the ballot? Why, instead of tempering society with grace and softness, they would embitter it with the asperities of debate, and instead of being man's comforter and better angel, they would be his intellectual antagonist, ever at words with him. If women were given the ballot where would be man's refuge from the corroding cares of life and thought? Where would be his domestic comfort and happiness? Where would be his unutterable delight that now dwells in that magic word, "home"? All these true joys would be lost. Women instead of seeking to make their homes pleasant and happy, would be diving into the theology of politics, and this great nation of ours, I fear, would be similar to France before the revolution. Man would only have a fortified place for refuge when not at war.

It seems to me that the happiness of the world depends upon keeping women in their present domestic sphere. I think man can more readily perceive and has a greater knowledge of what the country or state most needs.

There are, I confess to my sorrow, some women who seem to have no power of reasoning. I ask the question: Suppose such a female were a politician, holding some public office, for instance, and you complained to her of some objectionable features, which might be within her power to eliminate. What would be the result? Why, I fear that in many cases you would get attended to as much as you would if you endeavored to persuade a tortoise to be a tabby; and to expostulate with her would be as effectual as remonstrating with a buffalo about his hump.

Women, it seems, for the most part are governed by the same influence all over. Thus they are very charming, delightful, and admirably adapted to perform peculiar functions, but entirely unfitted to exercise political functions. Therefore they are not the proper persons to make and execute laws, or return members to congress. Again, if equal rights were given the fair sex, it is very probable that the majority of good women through their retiring modesty would refrain from going to the polling places, while doubtless the lower class would flock there and this would only tend to increase the already corruptness of politics.

I wonder how many of our good men would be willing to say to their wives and daughters, "Come with me to the polls and cast your ballot." I dare say there would be few if any who would suffer them to do so. They realize that it is no fit place for a lady, and I suspect if the ladies don't realize this fact now that they would after their first experience at the election booths and very much to their sorrow and modesty at that.

I think it is generally conceded that the hand which rocks the cradle rules the world. How much more suffrage then can a woman ask than this?

Bonaparte once asked Madame De Stael in what manner could he best promote the happiness of France. Her reply was full of political wisdom. She said: "Instruct the mothers of the French people."

Now isn't this just the question that confronts the American people today, and how can it better be done than by the women doing their part by using their influence at home, and continuing in her present domestic sphere, leaving well enough alone. I think the good men have already demonstrated to us sufficiently that they are capable of running the affairs of this grand and powerful nation of ours.

Barney Peltz, who used to be one of the pitching mainstays of the St. Louis Browns, and was last year sent to Washington and then to Baltimore, has been suspended by Manager Joe Cantillon of the Minneapolis team of the American Association. During his later years in the American league, Peltz's main virtue seemed to be the jinx he had on the Cleveland Naps, who generally were routed merely by his appearance in the box.

Frank Schulte of the Chicago Cubs declares that he will knock out 20 home runs this year. He made 12 last year, two less than the record of Heinie Zimmerman, who led the National league with 14.

Luther McCarthy, Tom McCarney's white heavyweight champion, who tried himself out by whipping Flynn, declares he will take on all comers now, and expects to be busy until July 4 with a short bout every two weeks. The Glorious Fourth will see him battling Jess Willard or Gumbost Smith at Los Angeles.
